ABOUT DJORDJE VARDA THE MAESTRO OF FLORAL ART DESIGN----------
Djordje Varda was predestined to a career as a lawyer by his parents, nevertheless chose to juggle another vocabulary: the language of flowers. Guided by passion and instinct, this autodidact gives a new breath to the Floral Art. A true artist whose ephemeral works have adorned the finest addresses of the Parisian golden triangle, but also the most luxurious houses throughout the world in Russia, India, the United States ..., and the most prestigious princely events. Djordje Varda works to develop not only a collection of exclusive vases for the Hotel de Crillon, A Rosewood Hotel but also a unique rose that bears the name of the Palace. With the motto of Georgia O'Keeffe, one of the major modernist American painters of the 20th century: "When you seize a flower in your hands and watch it, nothing else matters. It becomes your universe. It is this universe, this rare moment that I want to offer to everyone. Undoubtedly Varda is a poet.
